I provide consulting services tailored to your needs to help you better preserve your family, business, or organizational history. I leverage my diverse experience in libraries and archives, digital technology, oral history, and photo and document preservation, as well as my extensive professional network, to connect you with helpful resources, help you evaluate relevant options, and identify the best path forward.

Monocurate

<https://www.monocurateatx.com>

Founded by Brooke Lake in Austin, Texas, Monocurate is a new women-led company that believes the lifework of individuals needs to be preserved. We offer a broad spectrum of unique services, including archival organization, preservation services, oral histories, genealogical research, content discovery, acquisition & curation, reference and research assistance, descriptive metadata cataloging, and personal property appraisal. These services are usually aimed at institutions, yet Monocurate has made them accessible for everyday folks.

Gina Watts

With experience in special collections research, inventorying materials, and synthesizing data, I provide consulting for information organization and archives projects, as well as proxy research services to repositories located in Austin. Besides libraries, I have worked with several nonprofits as well as individuals to help them prepare materials for appraisal and create public-facing reports. I would love to help your project come to life.
